ON THE TRAIL OF
THE PATHFINDER.
From The Independent.

"This is the striking title of a volume of stirring lyries on prominent scenes and events in the life of Col. Fremout, connected in a continuous series, forming almost a complete bagging the Pathinder, and written in a tasteful and spirited tayle, by a well-knöwn American poet. The book comprises lot tayle, by a well-knöwn American poet. The book comprises lot tayle, by a well-knöwn American poet. The book comprises lot the free States, and its appeal is eloquent and powerful. Its contents are admirably adapted to the purposes of public recitation at Cub meetings; and such a use of it might be made effective almost beyond measure. These lyries, at this time, will afford incentives to action like the songs which the Crusaders sang on the eve of battle."

"This is a volume of as good verse as is often published now a-days. The ballads included have reference to those sirring incidents in the life of Col. Frement which excite so much enturisam for him, not as a candidate of a great party, but as the adventurous and heroic explorer of the Western widerness. It has been suggested that they are the productions of the muse of Wirrier, and many of them are not unworthy of so high a source. The Ride of the One Hundred, 'The Nebraska Bison Hunt.' The Prairie Camp, 'A Night by Lake Tlamsth,' and many other subjects in the rormantic career of the mation's favorite, are celebrated with true tyric fire."

"It is such a story as all of us see and learn, many a time through life. We are charmed with the freshness and individuality of the subject matter; we become absorbed in the regular and beautiful unfolding of the personality of each member of the group; and we grow tearfully earnest and better under the kindly indivence so gracefully thrown about us by means of Christian counsel and truth. The book will effect more good than a myriad of direct homilies, and we are certain that it will find a most welcome home with the better class of people everywhere."
